EQUINE MASSAGE APPRENTICESHIP

Do you want to include horses in your massage practice? This unique apprenticeship program makes it easy for therapists to earn their Large Animal Massage Practitioner endorsement. Set your own schedule, and customize the curriculum for your own areas of interest and skill level with horses!

The economy hasn't changed the way people care for their horses in our area. Demand for knowledgeable bodywork for horses has continued to grow steadily.

Massage can help improve the performance of sport horses, help injured horses recover faster, and bring ease to horses with training or behavior problems arising from physical tension.

Pam is an experienced massage educator, horse trainer, and equine massage therapist. An instructor at Cortiva Institute (formerly Brenneke School of Massage), Pam now teaches equine massage therapy and continuing education in Issaquah, Washington. She created her apprenticeship program when she saw a need for a hands-on approach to equine massage education.

This 100-hour program is approved by the Washington State Board of Massage. Every class session includes hands-on time with the horses, and all instruction is one-on-one. Many opportunities for working with horses are offered, including visits to veterinary clinics, training barns, horse shows, and more. School horses are available for additional practice time or horsemanship instruction.
